Statement

ISATT is uniquely positioned as a global teacher education research society with focuses on research into teaching thinking and understandings of their own role in developing practice in diverse cultural contexts. We should continue to be the leading position in our field and further grow as a driver of innovative research on teachers and teaching, gaining insights into teacher development and teaching, fostering quality education through timely identifying emerging professional development needs and opportunities at all levels of education, and eventually providing an updated databank for informing educational policies.

I am honored to be nominated as Newsletter Editor. Communications and social networking are rapidly-evolving tools that should be well-supported by ISATT Newsletter as a “linkage-leverage-learning” channel connecting with and going beyond our community. I am fully committed to serve our community by regularly informing our members of past and upcoming events such as conference events, awards, socials, meetings, and other items of interest to our members through soliciting and organizing information and materials from the ISATT members and related professions, as well as working in collaboration with Executive Committee to ensure timely delivery of newsletters and that content accurately reflects the vision, mission, beliefs, and activities of ISATT.
